ENDER, Otto, Dr. jur.

- From 1930 (December 4) to June 20, 1931 he was Federal Chancellor of the Austrian Republic and from May 20, 1933 until May 14 1936 he was Minister without Portefeuille in the Dollfuss and Dollfuss-Schuschnigg regime, and was assigned to the creation of a new constitution of Austria.
- 16) He was always a member of the Christlich-Soziale Party. Up to 1933 he was a Democrat. After the Dollfuss coup d'etat in 1933 and the dissolution of the Austrian Parliament he was assigned to create the new "Staendeverfassung" of the republic.
- In contrast to his former Democratic convictions he wrote a new, authoritative constitution, based on the principles of Fascism. Through this act he lost the sympathies of the truly Democratic circles in Austria and abroad. He is no longer to be considered a Democrat.
- 19) His financial position is good.

19) His financial position is good.

21) physiological: medium height, slim, white hair, wears glasses;
intellectual: intelligent but a weak character and unreliable. At the time of Mussolini's great influence in Austria, Ender was under pressure from the Catholic church.
emotional: he is extremely bigot, which is the reason why he was given up his former ideals in order to comply with the requests of the clergy.
operational: he is not sociable and/<sup>is</sup>very retiring.

Report covers time up to 1939.

Interviewer's own information and "Who is Who?" in Central and East Europe Edition 1935 and "Oesterreichischer AmtsKalender" edition 1937.
